CONCUSSION

A family's story of how the long-term impact of sport-related concussion changed their lives forever

Allen & Unwin

9781761067624 | $36.99 | © | PB | Sports Injuries

The revealing, confronting and shocking story of how sports-related concussion and the damage it causes can change a person's life and the impact it has on their family

Concussion has become one of the biggest issues to face contact sports. Only in the past decade have the consequences of repeated head knocks become better known, and the science is still rapidly catching up. But with the discovery of CTE, or Chronic Traumatic Encephalopathy, in the brains of deceased football players, it is now known that the onset of a form of dementia, caused by repeated concussions, can strike people as young as those in their thirties and forties.

This is what has happened to Michael Lipman, a former rugby international who came out in public in 2018 as having had a diagnosis of early-onset dementia and probable CTE.

With incredible courage and candour, Michael and his wife Frankie Lipman tell their story. Concussion is both an emotional personal journey and a deep insight into our understanding of CTE—its causes and effects. It's a must-read for anyone involved in contact sports, whether they're players or parents of players. Michael and Frankie's message is urgent, moving and important.

Michael Lipman, born in England and raised in Sydney, played ten rugby Test matches for England and was a professional footballer for Bath and the Melbourne Rebels. Frankie Lipman is a former News Ltd journalist. She and Michael live on the Central Coast.

REASONS NOT TO WORRY

How to be Stoic in chaotic times

Brigid Delaney

Allen & Unwin

9781743310496 | $27.99 | © | PB | Self-help

An accessible introduction to Stoic principles of virtue, moderation and self-discipline, adapting this ancient knowledge to inspire practical advice for everyday life

We're all searching for answers to the biggest questions. How to be good? How to find calm? How to properly grieve? How to beat FOMO? How to work out what truly matters? Well, good news is that the wisest minds in history asked the exact same questions—and they found answers. Their ancient philosophy of Stoicism can show us that we are in fact already in possession of the very tools we need to excavate this much-needed wisdom for ourselves.

So into the past we go with Brigid Delaney, to a time not unlike our own: one full of pandemonium, war, plagues, pestilence, treachery, corruption, anxiety, overindulgence—and even then, the fear of a climate apocalypse. By learning and living the teachings of three ancient guides, Epictetus, Seneca and Marcus Aurelius, Brigid shows us how we can apply these lessons to our modern lives in a way that allows us to regain a sense of agency and tranquility.

Stoicism can be tough medicine to swallow, but not here—this book is awash with insight, humour and compassion. Timely and so very useful, and filled to the brim with ways you can wrest back control, here are all the reasons not to worry.

Brigid Delaney is a journalist for the Guardian and writes a popular weekly column Brigid Delaney's Diary. She is the author of This Restless Life, Wild Things and Wellmania.

Lady Eleanor knows everyone who counts and at her annual sumptuously extravagant party, a Circus Ball, Charlie will meet them all.

THE STRANGER

Kathryn Hore

Allen & Unwin
9781761065545 | $36.99 | © | PB | Fiction

An uncompromising and compelling feminist Western for readers of The Natural Way of Things

In Darkwater, being female doesn't amount to much. But Chelsea's luckier than most. She's the young lover of the town's feared leader, which she keeps telling herself is a good thing, what with food getting scarce and the wells drying up. She's secure and safe and can almost believe she's happy.

But when a stranger rides into town, gun on one hip, whip on the other, Chelsea can't look away. Especially when it turns out this stranger is a woman. Nobody can say what the stranger is there for. But she brings talk of an outside perhaps no longer so chaotic, no longer something to hide away from—and she knows far too much about dark choices made in the town when the world outside was falling apart.

As the rumours fly about Darkwater's bloodied past and the murder of a woman twenty years earlier, Chelsea finds herself being drawn into someone else's terrifying quest for justice. Or is it merely deadly revenge? In a place ruled by fear, Chelsea's going to have to decide whose side she's really on before more blood soaks the ground of Darkwater—this time, perhaps her own.

Original, unflinching, gritty and visionary, The Stranger is a stunning feminist Western for our times.

Prinkipo Island, Turkey, 2017. Family gather for the 100th birthday of the famous artist Sirin Saka. It ought to be a time of reminiscence looking back on a long and fruitful artistic career. But the deep past when imperial forces fought over her homeland is something Sirin has spent a lifetime trying to conceal. Eventually Sirin begins to express her pain the only way she knows how. She paints the story onto her dining room wall, revealing a history wiped from public consciousness and the cause of her family's anguish that has sat, ruinous, in their subconscious for generations.

Defne Suman is the author of The Silence of Scheherazade. Raised on Prinkipo Island, she now lives in Athens.
