Azure Capital continues momentum with appointment of new Partner

Azure Capital is pleased to announce the appointment of new Partner, Cameron Wilson, who joins Azure from Luminis Partners and further enhances the firm's ability to support clients across multiple sectors.

The appointment of Cameron brings to Azure a leading M&A adviser with a strong track record of advising leading companies and financial sponsors across the business services, technology, healthcare and consumer sectors. Prior to joining Luminis, Cameron had roles with Fort Street Advisers and UBS.

A selection of Cameron's prior transactions include advising:

- Navis Capital Partners on its continuation vehicle for Mainland Poultry;
- Phocas Software on its sale to KKR;
- Superloop on its public market defence against Aussie Broadband's unsolicited approach;
- QIC on its acquisition of Nexus Day Hospitals;
- Morrison & Co on its acquisitions of Qscan and Pacific Radiology Group;
- Mercury Capital on its sale of Fiftyfive5 to Accenture; and
- ProTen on the sale to Roc Partners and Aware Super.

Azure's Managing Partner, Richie Baston, said: "Azure's strategy is to focus on three industry groups with deep sector capability in each, being natural resources, infrastructure and industrials.

Cameron's appointment in Sydney further builds out our national industrials team located across our Perth, Sydney and Melbourne offices. Within an overall team of over 60 advisers, we now have 25 industrials advisers working with corporate and financial sponsor clients.

Our ambition is to be the pre-eminent boutique in the Australian market, which is supported by Azure's successful long-term partner and major shareholder, Natixis CIB."

Cameron Wilson said: "I'm excited to be joining a growing platform like Azure. I'm drawn to the firm's strong culture, values and momentum, its clear strategic plan, and the global institutional reach and financing capacity within the Azure and Natixis CIB partnership."

About Azure Capital
