

Student Behaviour Expectations Policy

Group Behaviour

Surf Life Saving Western Australia Inc. endeavours to provide a learning environment which is supportive of group and individual learning. This required support from all candidates, trainers and assessors. It is therefore expected that candidates will:

- Respect the rights of other candidates attending the course
- Be respectful of Surf Life Saving Western Australia Inc. Staff and representatives
- Refrain from behaviour which is disruptive, offensive and may undermine group dynamics

On occasion where an individual's behaviour impacts on group learning and harmony the course trainers/assessor has the right to take the following steps:

- Give a verbal warning-speak to the candidate identifying the issues that are of concern
- Inform the Training and Education Coordinator.

If the behaviour continues-the candidate concerned may be asked to leave the course (under these circumstances the student will not be eligible for a refund.

Assessment guidelines

The courses where Surf Life Saving Western Australia Inc. issues a statement of attainment or accreditation will require students to undergo several forms of assessment including scenario, written questions, work booklets and practical demonstrations. All assessment is expected to be the original work of the candidate to identify that they are component of all qualifications they receive.

Where there is reservation as to originality of any work the candidate will be:

- Interviewed presenting the information that supports the reservation and allowed to present their case.
- If there is doubt that the candidates competency can be identified, the candidate will be asked to complete another form of assessment. This is to verify that they have the required skills and knowledge to meet the competency requirement of the qualification sought.
