Early Childhood Approach (ECA)

Support for children (0-9) who may have developmental delay or disability

Who is the ECA program for?

The Early Childhood Approach (ECA) program is designed to support children under nine years of age that have a disability, or under six years of age that may have a developmental delay or concern.

The ECA Program recognises that a child's early years are important for their long-term development and help lay the foundation for their future abilities.

A diagnosis is not required to access the program as the focus is on early childhood intervention. It is important to support children with a developmental delay or disability as early as possible.

Areas We Support

Working Together With Your Family

Our ECA practitioners are trained professionals in early childhood development and will tailor a support pathway based on your child's individual needs.

They will work closely with you to:

- Understand the needs of your child and family.
- Assess your child's needs including what is going well and where your child may need further help.
- Support you to set goals with you and your child.
- Provide helpful information, connect you and your child with the most appropriate community and mainstream supports in your area.
- Provide short term Early Supports if eligible
- Facilitate access to the National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS) if eligible.
- Support you to implement your child's approved NDIS plan as your NDIS Contact.
