We acknowledge the Traditional Owners of the lands on which we live and work, and pay our respects to Elders past and present.

About IFSS

We provide in home support to families who are at risk of child protection intervention or who require support to reunify children back to their care.

Our service is designed to help you maintain your children's safety while ensuring they stay connected to their family, community and culture.

IFSS is available to families in Midland.

How we help

We have Karlup's Aboriginal Cultural Lead and Family Support Worker, who will be available to be a part of your team. They will work with you to build upon your strengths to keep your family together.

We will seek to fully understand your circumstances and identify your strengths before recommending strategies and resources to address child protection concerns.

The intensive Family Support Service (IFSS) Midland is delivered in partnership between Uplyft and Indigo Junction/Karlup Aboriginal Corporation.

How we get started

1.Understand your eligibility: The service is for families who are currently working with the Department of Communities who need help to improve their family's wellbeing and safety.

2. Request a referral: If you feel like you, or someone you are working with could benefit from this service, please contact the family's case manager at the Department of Communities or Uplyft's Midland office to discuss the possibility of a referral.

3. Get support: If you are referred to us via the Department of Communities, you'll be fully supported by our Case Worker to work towards your goals and family reunification, keeping your children safe in your home.
