FW: Some considerations

Hello,

I am very concerned about overpopulation in the world generally and specifically the Central Coast.

Extra people require living space and being materialistic as so many of us are, we want landscaped homes (runoff and pollution), quarter acre blocks ((requiring habitat loss and urban sprawl), more energy and cars (air pollution) and the list goes on.

Our flora and fauna can't speak for themselves as their homes are bulldozed or smothered by some form of pollution.

If we want our world to be a good place for future generations to grow up in, we MUST protect savagely all currently sensitive areas and not clear more bush, swamps, estuarine habitats to make way for jetties, houses etc

YOU will get the credit or the blame for the future state of our Central Coast. Please act wisely.

Sorry this is a day late but I was only sent the first email on the matter on Thursday

Regards
