Dear General Manager,
Isn't it time to abandon the dirty ailing coal industry in favour of renewable energy which will create many more jobs than the coal industry ever has and has succeeded in ruining the environment wherever mining has been carried out. Water is contaminated, the ground is contaminated which affects all living creatures and their health including humans? Once the damage is done it cannot be repaired.
Scientists have proved that climate change is extremely real and if you don't intervene to look after the land, there will be nothing left in the future to worry about an economy.
