Hello - this enquiry relates more to the the five areas of engineering prescribed for registration in the Act (civil-structural-electrical-mechanical & fire safety engineering.)

As an example, how might a Chemical Engineer be classified as at July 1, do they fall under "Civil" or would they not need to register until the next (group) phase of practice areas are added, for instance in 12 months from July 1 ?

OR

Does/might Chem Eng fall under the broad definition for professional engineers who practise in, or who want to apply for registration to practise in, the building industry?

Could a scenario be that some Chem Eng people who provide "Professional Engineering Services" outside the Building Industry such as the Petrochemical environment are not required to be registered from July 1?
