

To whom it may concern,

As a licensed agent in Victoria, Queensland & NSW, I completely agree with your plan to raise the bar for new agents to qualify.

Real estate is a prestige industry, and we deal with people's biggest assets.

The reason the community has such a dim view of the industry is because most agents are crap, and should not be allowed to operate without much much more training.

I also recommend annual CPD is introduced for all agents, but not just useless training for the purpose of ticking a box, but actual skills and legislation training.
