Comments: As a proud gunai/kurnai woman I want to first know why the indigenous heritage of the region and the impacts it will shed on our sense of community and it's history are being ignored. I believe our food bowl will absolutely be destroyed with dust pollutants as well as our river and lakes. The pitiful amount of jobs (& short term) that the mine will provide will not make up for the jobs lost through from ruined agriculture and tourism. I also have absolutely no faith what so ever that the land will be rehabilitated back to its natural state after they mine is shut. Can anyone give me an example of a mine anywhere that has managed to be fully rehabilitated with no long term effects to the area?
