I don't believe enough consideration is being given to actual management of wildlife. The provision of artificial water and feed via farms has caused a population explosion that would not have happened naturally. This is having an impact not only on farm incomes but also within State Parks and other Crown Land that are being overgrazed especially by kangaroos. It is also having a deadly impact on roads where fatal accidents are occurring and extensive vehicle damage done. There either has to be culling or some other population control
