I write this piece today to add my thoughts and feelings on why I believe all animals, including all native, including all species of ducks and kangaroos should be protected from human beings wielding firearms. What more do I need say? For someone who's grown up sharing a border with the Churchill National Park, it absolutely is the most perplexing thought trying to digest how human beings believe that are entitled to bear arms to butcher animals using completely unjustifiable rational. Animals are tortured and killed in the name of entertainment or euphemisms like being considered pests. Enough is enough, these laws are outdated and need to be deconstructed and rebuilt where each animal life is considered as individually unique and precious as the next.

Kind regards,

Kristian
