

JAMAICA stool

Inviting curves and classic Spanish contemporary design. In production for over 25 years, the Jamaica stool remains as modern as ever.

Initially designed for a nightclub by Barcelona interior designer Pepe Cortés in 1991, the Jamaica has a chromed steel structure with five legs and a swivel seat. Its materials and durability make the chair ideal for diverse settings. It can fit in a private home, hotel, bar, retail store or public space.

Now available in black alongside the aluminium and wooden beech version, the seat has a simple structure and a series of finishes and adjustments that make the seat dynamic and practical in various settings.
