COURSE OUTLINE

Course design
This is an interdisciplinary, practice-based fine art course offering studies in a broad range of specialised studio areas.

Exploring art through studio practice is central to the course. Students develop a range of practical, conceptual and technical skills to enable them to evaluate different approaches to their own practice, or to further their understanding of the creative industries.

Studio courses are taught by high profile practising artists and are complemented by integrated studies in the history and theory of art.

ATARs published in course entries

Minimum ATAR
- Published as a prerequisite; you must have this raw ATAR or higher to be eligible for the course.

Minimum ATAR including adjustments
- Published in the admission criteria. You must have a selection rank (ATAR + adjustments) at this level or higher to be eligible for the course

Guaranteed ATAR
- Published in the course entry. If you receive a raw ATAR at this level or higher, you are guaranteed an offer for this course...whether you receive it is based on your preferences.

Things to remember when looking at published ATARs for a course

- The ATAR profile and lowest selection rank can provide you with an indication of how competitive it might be to get into a course
- However, these are not a cut-off or guarantee, just an indication of what happened last year
- It's still worth applying for a course you want even if your ATAR is lower than last year's lowest selection rank because:
  - The lowest selection rank might change for next year
  - You might receive subject adjustments or special consideration which boosts your rank higher than your ATAR

ATAR and Scaling

Scaling

	Why?
⚖️	• Study scores received from the VCAA are a rank for that particular subject • 30 is the average for every study, regardless of how competitive the cohort

	How?
📊	• By looking at the students undertaking the study this year, and their performance in their other studies

	For what?
⚛️	• Scaled scores are used only for the calculation of the ATAR • Prerequisites and subject adjustments are based on raw study scores

The scaling process

1. Yrs 7-12 - Australian Labour Market - Focus on Construction: Construction is a large employing industry. Trades workers are vital to Construction, with apprenticeships and traineeships the main entry pathway. Jobs in Construction can be physically demanding, like bricklaying, meaning that many people leave the industry when they are older. This opens opportunities for young people, and the training and experience can lead to management jobs. Many of the workers are male and part-time jobs are rare. For more information & various career opportunities in this industry, click here. Next Monday, Wholesale Trade.

2. Yrs 9-12 - Peter Mac Medical Radiations Open Day: This open day on Sunday September 9 is for students interested in careers in the medical radiations professions (Medical Imaging, Radiation Therapy, Nuclear Medicine etc.). Peter Mac staff will conduct tours of these departments and provide important career and professional information. If you're interested in this field, make the most of this great opportunity to see the latest in high-tech modern medicine. For more information, click here.

3. Yrs 10-12 - ATAR profiles: VTAC CourseSearch is up and running for 2018, but for some odd reason (we don't know why), the ATAR Profile for each university course option is not listed. We're hoping this will change soon, but in the meantime, you can access a list of all 2018 course ATAR profiles (highest - lowest ATAR for a course, and highest - lowest Selection Ranks for a course) by clicking here. You can read pg. 19 of the Year 11 & 12 VTAC Guide (you will all either have received one of these by now, or will receive one during next week's VTAC information evenings), but in short, this are what these terms mean:

Need help?
