

A WRITING GUIDE FOR COUNSELORS AND TEACHERS

Colleges that invite letters of recommendation are looking for stories that will help them better evaluate a student for academic potential and fit within their community. Counselors and teachers are powerful advocates in this effort, each poised to share unique and valuable insights. The context they offer helps clarify, support, and build upon information provided by the student.

HOW COUNSELOR LETTERS ADD VALUE

Counselors provide a view of an applicant within the context of an entire graduating class and school community, addressing a student's academic achievements, extracurricular accomplishments, and personal interests and goals, without repeating what is in the application.

HOW TEACHER LETTERS ADD VALUE

Teachers write from the vantage point of the classroom, using their firsthand knowledge of a student's intellectual curiosity, creative thought, quality of writing, class behavior, and work habits to depict the student as a scholar.

While both teacher and counselor recommendations capture a student's personality and strengths, there are distinct differences between the two perspectives. Below are examples of some key student characteristics admissions committees are trying to assess and how each writer might address them.

	COUNSELOR	TEACHER
DERSHIP	Anecdotes describing leadership in clubs, sports, and other pursuits in the school and community	Examples from the classroom, such as leadership during class discussions and with group projects and assignments
LEA		Ability and willingness to enhance the learning of their peers
HEVEMENT	An explanation of the student's transcript and test scores within the context of the school and graduating class, including unusual circumstances with course selections	Insights about classroom performance and approaches to specific projects and assignments
	or performance	Topics where the student excelled or exhibited particular interest
AC	Context for and rationale behind specific awards and honors	Willingness to seek help when needed

	COUNSELOR	TEACHER
GROWTH	Growth measured over the course of the high school career, including academic progress and social-emotional development and maturation	Growth over the course of the class, or since the last time the teacher taught the student, including willingness to be challenged and learn from the experience
GEMENT	Level of involvement in school, family, and community	Class participation, contributions to discussions, desire to engage with the learning process beyond what's expected of the class
ENGAG	Particular experiences that have shaped the student
ICE	Response to challenges impacting overall academic performance	Reaction to academic setbacks such as failing a test or not understanding a concept
RESILIENCE	Hardships and obstacles faced or overcome, such as school transfers, family situations, illness, or personal struggles	Response to personal challenges that may have affected attendance in class or the ability to be present and learn
ACTER	Personal interactions with the student and observations of how the student interacts with other students and faculty	Personal interactions with the student and observations of how the student engages with peers in class discussions and group projects
CHAR	Anecdotes that highlight empathy or concern for others	Willingness to assist other students
