ABOUT THE COURSE

This course teaches a carefully researched, optimal blend of the basket of skills you need when transitioning from being a specialist in your career to a leader of projects, strategies & staff. Build your emotional intelligence & ability to respectfully influence others to deliver organisational & personal objectives.

The critical element that differentiates the successful manager is the application of effective interpersonal skills. All too often, people have taken on management responsibilities on the strength of their technical or specialist skills. However, a management role depends on achieving results through others which requires a significantly different skill set.

How can you ensure you have the right mix of emotional intelligence and leadership skills to: meet corporate objectives, keep your team motivated, inspired AND performing?

Designed specifically for technical people with new management responsibility, this course will help you build emotional intelligence and your skills in leading, managing, empowering, influencing and driving the performance of others to meet organisational and personal objectives.

You will spend time revising behaviours, beliefs, values and attitudes, and then use this awareness to help develop the skills to enable you to manage, lead and motivate others to meet and exceed objectives.

You will take away a portfolio of realistic, relevant and immediately usable models, techniques and approaches that will dramatically improve your performance as a manager, help sustain productive working relationships with colleagues and build a committed and highly performing team.

Our instructor boasts vast experience in both management, leadership and behavioural psychology to provide you with meaningful insights, skills, tools and tactics.

OUR EXPERT COURSE INSTRUCTOR

Andrew Lee

Passionate about people, curious about behaviour, Andrew Lee has extensive experience of over 30 years as a management consultant, trainer, facilitator and coach throughout Australia, New Zealand and South East Asia, with a great deal of expertise in adult learning approaches.

After early employment in construction and mining, Andrews's career interests led him to Europe where he worked in the Entertainment and Hospitality industries, and explored the art of stone masonry as an apprentice in France and then to China where he worked at the Red Cross Hospital as a Doctor of Traditional Chinese Medicine. He then returned to Australia to study.

During study and a period teaching computer skills and working as a volunteer with unemployed youth, in 1991, Andrew made the transition into corporate training and since then has facilitated a diverse range of behavioural and attitudinal trainings throughout South East Asia, Australasia and the Middle East, while continually educating himself and building his knowledge base. Andrew's near obsession with quantifiable results and learning transfer, along with his experience with diverse cultures and people with varying educational backgrounds, has led him to develop a pragmatic training style that produces measurable and sustainable results.

Andrew now works internationally as a keynote speaker, facilitator and coach. His unique ability to engage with audiences from all walks of life and present a message that cuts to the core of the issue at hand leaves his audiences inspired, thoughtful and entertained.

Andrew's familiarity with technical thinking has enabled him to create a niche in assisting technically trained professionals make the move into management and leadership roles - translating complex theory into easily understood examples and stories inspires his audiences to take a fresh look at the problems they may be confronted with.
